FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS.

Will the treatment be painful?

Most people experience tooth soreness for a few days after starting each new stage of treatment. This is normal and it is a sign that the Invisalign aligners are working, moving your teeth to their final desired position. This soreness should gradually go away a couple of days after inserting the new aligners in the series. If it does not, promptly call your doctor.

Will treatment affect my speech?

Like all orthodontic treatments, the aligners may temporarily affect your speech, and you may have a slight lisp for a day or two. However, as your tongue gets used to having aligners in your mouth, any lisp or minor speech impediment caused by your aligners should disappear.

Are the aligners really invisible?

Aligners are virtually invisible and discreet, so most people will not even notice that you are wearing them.

How long does the average treatment take?

The length of your treatment will depend on your specific needs and will be determined by your doctor. However, the average treatment for an adult is about 12-18 months. The length of time for treatment of a teenager may vary and will be determined by your doctor.

How long will it take to start seeing results?

Invisalign results start to show a few months after starting treatment.

Do I have to extract teeth as part of the treatment?

Not everyone requires extractions as part of their treatment, however, this will depend on the type of correction you require. Please consult your doctor if you have any questions regarding whether extractions are required as part of your treatment.

How much does it cost?

Please consult your doctor regarding treatment costs and payment arrangements.
